To Captain LIMPUS was left the task of testing in actual warfare the mobility of the mounted naval guns, and right well did they bear the test. Alone and unaided it is obvious that the artillery of the Army could never have accomplished what was done by means of the naval guns. The naval weapons were heavier but evidently were more mobile in spite of their rough and ready mountings. It is alleged on seemingly good authority, the Japan Mail says, that Marquis Yamagata has resigned, and that the Japanese Emperor asked first Marquis Ito and afterwards Count Matsukata to form a Cabinet, but both statesmen declined. There remains, therefore, no course except a consultation of the elder statesmen in the presence of the Sovereign.

Telegraphic news from a native source re celved in Shanghai last week stated that on the 6th instant a skirmish occurred outside the native city. Tieutsin, between a party of supposed Boxers and a combined force of Russian French, and Japanese marines, resulting in the defeat of the former, who left some twenty odd men dead on the field.

Speaking of the threatening attitude taken up by the United States toward Turkey in the matter of the refusal of the Porte to hand over the indemnity due on account of the Armenian massacres, the Times Odessa correspondent writes :- From the standpoint of party strife this threat of a naval demonstration against the Porte comes as an exceedingly cunning stroke from the side of Mr. McKinley, Such a step should raise the prestige of the States and at the same time the prestige of Mr. McKinley's own policy, which has, forecoth, already led the exuntry up to a point from whence she finds it unnecessary to hesitate to threaten even a European Power whilst at the same time it serves at once as an argument and as a justification for the country's continually increasing expendiffure. JAPAN AND COREA.

The Corean correspondent of the Nagovak Press. writing on the 29th ult. of the recent judicial murder in Secul concludes with the following remarks :-

What will the Japaness Government do f That is one of the political consequences which no one can foretell. Minister Hayashi, one of the brightest men Japan has had here, on hearing the news immediately demanded an audience with the Emperor. This was refused him. He then sent a vigorous letter of protest to the Foreign Minister and there is no doubt that the wires between Seoul and Tokyo have been kept busily at work since vesterday.

It is notorious that Corea inaugurated the war between Japan and China, and the first ostensible act of that great tragedy was the assassination by a minion of the Corean Emperor of Kim Ok-Kinn in Shanghai. It is possible that again this fatal nation is about to deluge the Far East in blood? It is notorious that the relations between Japan and a certain Power are strained to breaking point. It is also notorious that the to death is in favour of that cortain Power. Just at this time also a company of Japanese

THE CRISIS IN THE NORTH.

A Tientsin correspondent of the N. C. Duily News writes on the 2nd inst, of the reception of the marines and the entraining for Poking. They have all been received with offusion, if not with acclamation, he says, and were played to their quarters by the Town Band. The Germans have yet to come, and further numbers of Russians, French, Japanese and finally British are expected. The Burfleur with the Rear Admiral arrived to-day from Wei-hai-wei. Our men are mostly Orlandon and Algerines, and include a few of that rorest of British visitors in North Chins, midshipmen. There was the usual attempt at bluff on the part of the Chinese to provent them entraining, but when it was known they would go with or without permission. the opposition collapsed. It was given out that parties of thirty would not be objected to. Of course there was no counting, and the "thirty" ran anywhere between fifty and seventy. We hear to-day the men got comfortably up and marched into the city without incident. The British Legation, by far the most commodious. can take one hundred men at a pinch fortunately. the first secretary's house is unoccupied and some of the students have recently vacated their rooms, so there are more quarters than usual. The opposition to landing is, of course, chiefly "bluff," but it is also largely due to that bane of Chinese Official life-fear of responsibility, Each man fears to incur censure and refers the simplest matter to the man above him in ondless series. The impatient foreigner naturally debits the delay to policy. It is here that people in Tientsin miss Li Hung-chang. Whatever his faults, the old Viceroy did not fear to not, and did not have recourse to the petty worry of delay and chicane. A few of the largur-headed Chinese say the old man has been sent deliberately to the centre of the coming storm; that he has cautiously and unostenationaly disposed his troops over the best strategic centres in the Two Kwang, and is fairly well ready to nip the big imminent Southern rebellion in the bud. Wellinformed Canton-se here say there has been a

Fires are the order of the day, and there is some warranty for thinking them due to some organisation. BRITISH VALOUR.

A WAR-CORRESPONDENT'S OPINION.

I have not known precisely how to rate British valour. I have seen that it is the first of its kind. have had many opportunities to indige it. It has shown itself in every engagement we have had with the Boers, sometimes too brilliantly to be entrusted to English for description, often successfully, always tellingly. But what does it make for, how does it count in warf Remember that the Boar lias never shown a trace of that quality, and yot he has made many a good battle, and we account him a good fighting man If we analyse the fighting qualities of the Briton and the Boer we find that the Briton is always ready to rush upon death, while the Boar as religiously avoids risking his life more than the greatest caution loaves necessary. Shall we, then, say that valour is accompanied by the unnecessary slanguter of those who possess if I It has often soemed so. Grant this, admit that many an Englishman now lying under the surface of the voldt would have "lived to fight enother day had he been less brave. what is there left to say for valour-pure, unreasoning, dashing valour f

ONE OF THE ELEMENTS I know that the men who possess it will read his with imputiones. They do not admit that the value of this quality is discussable. They beloug to a race which has always enjoyed and valued it, and they despise those who have missed it, just as they despise those who boast of itfor they are so certain of it among themselves that they never allude to it except in praise of an enemy. But we must appak of it in discussing this wer because it has been one of the two most important elements, in the earlier part of the conflict on the British side. Those two were the bad generalship of incompetent commanders and the extraordinary courage by which their men have either veiled or glorifled their general's mistakes

We must discuss it as we discuss the consequences of equipping an army with long-range magazine rifles or with lyddite shells, or with smokeless powder. The proper rating of valour in bittle is surely as well worth looking into as the worth of these other equipments. I have suggested that the Brition regards volour as a regulation accompaniment, like his body or his weapons. I think I can say how the Boer, who has never known the feeling of it, found himself regarding the quality after five months of fighting on this western side of the continent. THE BORR IN A HUNTER.

He is a hunter rather than a warrior. His game is to lie in hiding and kill whatever comes in front of him—and to run the moment his own kins is threatened.

At Belmont and Graspan he discovered that Thereas deer either lie or ran away the British ran at him. Therefore he ceased to hide behind rocks and took a campaign of surprises, trans. and ambushes. He dup trenches below the enrface and hid in the grass, concentrating such numbers that either the first volley or his continuous volleys would hold back even the extraordinary value which disregarded the death of many so long as life maintained itself in a few At Belmont and Graspan he was surprised and joited out of his lairs by fair valour, but, with his accustomed for like cunning he thereafter counted upon this quality in his foes, and made it serve his deadly purpose by leading his victims into his pitfalls.

Mr. Troup notes that with regard to crime generally there is good reason to believe that relatively to the number of crimes committed the number of persons committing crimes is smaller, and that since the reduction of gentences the incorrigible criminals commit a greater number of crimes. The police are more vigilant; but against this may be set a greater disinclination to prosecute.

New Zealand's offer of a brick of solid gold to Bir George White recalls an incident some years ago during the visit of a distinguished personage, whose name need not now be mentioned. The visitor was invited to go down one of the principal gold mines, was offered a pick, and requested to do a little formal gold mining. He was given the hint that a little piece of paper lying on the mullock-bank marked a spot which would be a desirable one to pick at, so he let go.
